

RARE PHOTO OF HUMMINGBIRD—This Ruby-throated Hummingbird nest was discovered on a branch of an apple tree in the West-End section of Monroe County. The nest, about an inch across the cavity, is a solidly built little cup of vegetable down, plant fibers, lichens and spider webs. In it are two baby birds. The Hummingbirds, smallest of all birds, are only three to three and one-half inches long. They migrate here from South America and Mexico spanning the Gulf of Mexico non-stop! Photo is believed by experts to be a "Once in a lifetime 'shot'," made by remote control with telescopic lens. It took two and one-half hours of patient waiting for picture to be taken of mother bird feeding her young. Photo is enlarged twice life size.

U.S. Army Spokesman Says

Viet Nam Operation Story Is Not An Accurate Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. George H. Decker, U.S. Army chief of staff, said Sunday that a news story which described South Viet Nam military operations as confused and ineffective "does not reflect accurately the opinions of responsible Army authorities in Washington or in the field."

The Associated Press dispatch from Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., was based on interviews with American officers who have returned to the United States after serving as advisers to South Vietnamese forces in the battle against the Communist Viet Cong. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in an ABC-TV interview "Issues and Answers"—denied the Viet Nam war is going badly.

In response to a question, which did not refer to any particular news report, he said Viet Nam armed forces have taken the initiative and are actively running down Communist guerrilla forces.

Rusk said there have been improvements in supply and intelligence operations and in the Viet Nam command structure.

Decker's statement said: "An Associated Press story appearing in today's newspapers does not represent official Army thinking on the use of special forces, the quality of the South Viet Nam intelligence system, the size of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in South Viet Nam, and the scope of operations by the South Vietnamese. My views are based on recent, direct observation in Viet Nam."

"The story also is an inaccurate, second-hand account of the views of Maj. Gen. (William B.) Rosson (chief of U.S. Special Forces — guerrillas), the Army's principal staff officer in the special warfare area."

The chief of staff then quoted Rosson as saying: "Practically none of the subjects covered in this story were discussed by me with the writer."

"I am not angry over 'misuse' of Special Forces in Viet Nam. Although ideally these highly trained troops should be used exclusively in Special Forces activities it has been necessary to use some of them temporarily on basic training missions."

"I am not 'angered by Vietnamese refusal to take the offensive.' On the contrary, I am impressed by the growing effectiveness of operations now being conducted by Vietnamese troops and their leaders."

Decker's statement continued: "The intelligence system in South Viet Nam, which was recognized some time ago as needing improvement, has been strengthened and further improvement is under way. This intelligence system is not 'near collapse' as reported in the particular story."

"The assertion that for every man out in the field training, there are five in rear echelon headquarters shuffling papers does not represent the facts."

"Very few U.S. service personnel in U.S. headquarters. The majority of all U.S. personnel are advising, training and supporting the counterinsurgency operations of the South Vietnamese armed forces."

"In support of agreed strategy for the conduct of operations against Viet Cong personnel and bases in South Viet Nam."

DeGaulle, Adenauer Review Joint Troops

REIMS, France (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer reviewed German and French soldiers marching together Sunday near this city symbolic of bitter French-German conflict in two world wars.

Then at a luncheon, the leaders of the two old enemy nations capped their postwar conciliation with pledges to help preserve the peace of Europe.

The panoply at this cathedral city was purposely planned by the French as the high spot of the West German leader's six-day visit. It was designed to stamp Adenauer's visit as a historic turning point in European affairs.

Attend Mass
They sat together, surrounded by their generals, for Mass in the fine old 13th-century cathedral where nearly all France's kings were crowned in bygone days of glory and where Joan of Arc appeared in the cathedral to have Charles VII proclaimed king.

The cathedral was badly damaged by German artillery in World War I and the citizens suffered under German occupation. And it was here the Germans signed the capitulation in World War II.

The 86-year-old chancellor said upon his return to Bonn that the friendship of the two former enemies is "a very firm political dam" against Soviet expansion in Europe.

Adenauer and De Gaulle drove to Mourmelon Camp, 18 miles east of Reims, for the historic parade of their soldiers.

In the line of march were 1,000 German soldiers and 1,500 French paratroopers. Clouds of dust swirled over the reviewing stand as trucks and tanks of the two forces passed by.

After the last units of the ground forces marched past, 32 jet planes from the French air force screamed by at low altitude over the gently rolling farmland of the champagne country.

Crowds lined the streets of Reims to see De Gaulle and Adenauer pass in their open car on the way to Mass.

In the crowd in the cathedral were 13 German generals and 11 French generals.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francois Marty, archbishop of Reims, saluted the two statesmen as "builders of peace who have come here on peaceful pilgrimages."

Archbishop Marty sounded the keynote for the day as he said: "Two sentiments can aid us and guide us: For the past, pardon for wounds; for the future, the will for reconciliation."

Remove 46 Bodies From Wreckage

Searchers Locate Wrecked Italian Jetliner In India

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Fighting rain, mud and jungle search teams brought 46 bodies Sunday from a hillside east of Bombay where an Italian jet airliner crashed, apparently killing all 94 persons aboard.

Police said if any of the passengers or crew survived the shattering crash they could not live long through the nearly continuous rains and howling winds of a raging southwest monsoon. Rescuers who reached the scene had to keep watch for panthers and wild boar.

Rescue Called Off
Because of the weather, rescue teams called off their search for bodies until Monday morning.

Fifty vehicles were reported bogged down in the heavy rain en route to the site. Two ambulances carrying a doctor and 20 assistants managed to get through.

The crash of the Alitalia jetliner was the worst disaster in Italy's aviation history. Never before had more than 40 died in an Italian plane crash.

The four-jet DC8 plummeted into 700-foot-high Nangiri Hill around midnight Friday. Local villagers reported seeing a ball of flame leap from the crest of the hill, 55 miles east of Bombay.

In Rome, Alitalia Airlines said its own investigators on the scene had reported there was no fire after the plane hit the hill. It said the absence of burned or blackened vegetation made the wreckage difficult to spot from the air.

Was Off Course
The crash site indicated the plane was off course as it prepared for an instrument landing in the heavy rain.

Alitalia officials said the pilot of the DC8 four-engine jet in his last message had reported he was only eight miles east of Bombay at an altitude of 4,500 feet. And that was but three minutes before he was due to land in Bombay.

The pilot, Cmdr. Luigi Quattrin, was one of the most experienced in the line's service, with a flying record dating back to World War II, said G. Picardo, Alitalia's manager in Bombay.

Bound For Rome
The plane was on a flight from Sydney, Australia, to Rome, with stops scheduled at Singapore, Bangkok, Bombay, Karachi and Tehran.

The 85 passengers reported by the airline to be aboard were Asians, Britons, Irishmen, Australians and Italians. As far as was known, no Americans were on the flight.

Eight top officials of Alitalia flew in from Rome and proceeded to the scene by jeep over rough Indian roads and then by foot to the crash scene. Indian aviation officials also joined in the investigation.

Ahmed Ben Bella Takes Over; Algerians Hail Him As Hero

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—Steel-helmeted Algerian army forces supporting dissident Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella took control of the Moslem quarters of Oran without opposition Sunday.

Flocking in triumphantly from Morocco, the troops hailed Ben Bella as the hero of Algeria's independence.

With western Algeria firmly in the hands of his supporters, Ben Bella left Cairo, apparently for Rabat. Presumably he planned to make a triumphant entry from Morocco.

From Algiers, moderate Premier Youssef ben Khedda sent two of his ministers to Rabat to seek a reconciliation between the rival factions.

Nine companies of regular Algerian troops, totaling about 1,500 men, arrived on the outskirts of Oran, Algeria's second-largest city, late Saturday night shouting, "Ya Hya Ben Bella"—Long live Ben Bella. Their equipment included antitank rockets and heavy machine guns recently manufactured in Czechoslovakia.

As they moved into the Moslem quarters of the city, they were enthusiastically greeted by crowds raising cheer after cheer for Ben Bella.

Overnight, thousands of Ben Bella slogans were painted on walls throughout the Moslem quarters of the city. Boy Scouts and children's groups paraded with huge portraits of Ben Bella and chanting Ben Bella slogans.

The army unit set up its headquarters in an abandoned farmhouse on the southern outskirts of the city. An officer there refused any information, declaring he could not divulge "military secrets."

In the European quarter, where 97 persons were killed in a street battle Thursday, French gendarmes patrolled the streets by agreement with the Moslem authorities.

Most of the remaining inhabitants seemed to have made up their minds to leave the country after Thursday's fighting. Hundreds of them lined up again Sunday for plane seats to France.

French sources said about 120 Europeans were reported missing in the city. They are believed held in police stations as suspected terrorists of the defunct Secret Army Organization.

The new prefect — provincial governor — of Oran, Labouari Soula, broadcast a warning that the Moslem authorities would not tolerate possession of arms by private individuals. Soula, regarded as a supporter of Ben Bella, was nominated last week by the local command of the nationalist guerrilla army.

Information Minister Mohammed Yazid and Minister of State Rabah Bitat left Algiers early Sunday for Rabat to seek a compromise with Ben Khedda's leftist opponents.

Chinese Commies Will Aid Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev and his cohorts put final charges Sunday into the propaganda cannon aimed at the United States and designed to be fired at the "Congress for General Disarmament and Peace" opening here Monday.

At the same time, diplomatic sources said the Chinese Communists and the Russians have decided to use the conference to disavow publicly any disputes between them which are claimed to be the invention of rotten bourgeois journalists.

Pravda Opens Front Page
For the first time since these alleged nonexistent arguments started, Pravda opened its front page Sunday to a major Chinese statement of opinion.

It quoted the chief Chinese delegate to the Congress, Mao Tung, as saying: "I think that the World Congress for General Disarmament and Peace will produce fresh evidence of the unity of our peoples in the struggle for peace, that a resolute rebuff will be given to the forces of imperialism, and especially of American imperialism, which is intensifying the arms race."

Among the several thousand delegates who have come here to denounce "American imperialism" are about 150 Americans.

It was learned that Canon Lewis John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, a sponsor of the Congress, intends to denounce the Soviet Union's original resumption of nuclear testing when he speaks Tuesday. This is a point that has not come up in the pre-congress publicity and one which most of the leaders would like to ignore. Collins will be supported by Kingsley Martin, former editor of the New Statesman, and by Sidney Silverman, member of Parliament. They also will call on the Soviet Union not to use the current American tests as an excuse for new Soviet testing.

This view also will be expressed by two spokesmen for the U.S. Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy. These Americans are not here as delegates or even official observers but wanted a chance to put forth an American view not influenced by Soviet policy. The two, who paid their own way here, are Homer Jack, executive director of the committee, and Erich Fromm, both of New York.

Sponsors of the Congress recognize that some delegates might not blindly endorse all the resolutions adopted and Mao, in his Pravda interview, answered them in advance.

Advance Answers
"It is not precluded," he said, "that there might be people at the congress who, behind the screen of words about peace, will attack the Socialist camp, the Soviet Union. I am convinced, however, that such attempts will be canceled out by the joint efforts of the delegations of the Socialist and neutralist countries and by all genuine peace champions in military alliance."

The congress opens in the Kremlin Monday morning, but the hour has not yet been announced nor has the speaker's list, nor the program. It will last six days.

It has not been announced who is paying the bills for the delegates, but attendance at the congress costs thousands of dollars for each one.

A Pravda article by Nikolai Gribichev left no doubt as to who the Russians think will be running the congress, however: "That Nikita Khrushchev has agreed to let the congress in person of the Soviet government's views is a most important circumstance. This will dispel much of the fog generated by opponents of disarmament to mislead world opinion."

The front-page reconciliation between Peiping and Moscow was brought about by Khrushchev's speech last week in which he pledged Soviet support for the Chinese Communists in event of an attack from Formosa.

Chinese Are Overjoyed
"We were overjoyed to read," Mao told Pravda, "that the head of the Soviet government came out in support of the Chinese people."

He said this statement—made "at a crucial moment for us"—adequately demolishes the provocative rumors spread in the West. It shows again that the friendship between our great peoples, among all the countries of the Socialist camp, is inviolate."

"Despite even the occupation of Tiwan (Formosa) by American armed forces, we still offer the way of negotiations to the American government." He did not elaborate.

Khrushchev had charged in his speech a week ago that "aggressive" circles in the United States were backing a possible Chinese Nationalist invasion of the China mainland.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk labeled the charge "nonsense." Rusk said, too, that no one should be surprised at the Soviet offer of military support to Red China since they have a military alliance.

Cubans Concerned About Stored Food Spoiling

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban officials who let food rot in storage will be sent to the Cuban version of Siberia—a sandy pit at Guanahacabibes on the island's westernmost tip.

This was the word Sunday from Interior Trade Minister Manuel Lizardo in the Communist newspaper Hoy.

Government employees who go wrong are to be sent to Guanahacabibes to pay for their sins by planting eucalyptus trees at a rehabilitation camp the government has set up there.

Lizardo gave notice that "revolutionaries who let stored merchandise rot will be removed from their positions and sent to be punished at Guanahacabibes."

Lizardo said those found to be counter-revolutionaries will be held for trial.

Warms People
"He who is an infiltrated counter-revolutionary," Lizardo said, "let him be prepared."

Lizardo spoke in Havana Saturday at a meeting of food rationing coordinators. Because of food shortages, Cubans have been under a strict rationing system.

Lizardo said the two most important problems of food supplies are area shortages and distribution. Distribution, he said, "although notably better is still suffering defects that we are trying to solve."

Bushkill Property Owner Hits At Tocks Dam Plan

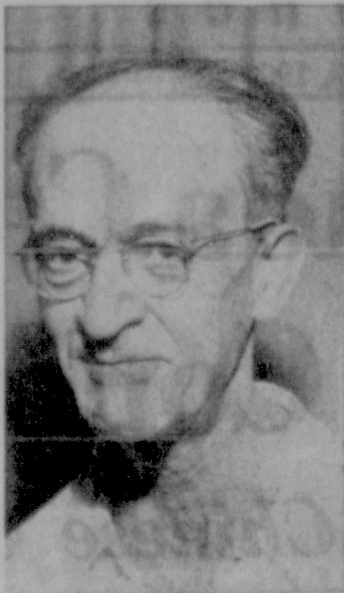

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

DEEP rumblings of protest about the proposed Tocks Island Dam are being heard in the camp of Henry R. Schnitzer, Bushkill resident, company president, and "Goldwater conservative."

Schnitzer is the president of the Schnitzer Alloy Products Co. of Elizabeth, N. J. He lives on the Calkout Road, which he says is located off the Winona Falls Road near Bushkill.

From his headquarters on the Calkout Road, Schnitzer is organizing a fight. The fight is against the Tocks Island Dam.

One of his gambits is the purchase of "Damn the Dam" decals for autos, "paid for with my own money," as he said. He noted that he has assurances from Bushkill businessmen for distribution of the stickers.

H. R. Schnitzer

Lists Objections

His objections to the dam, and its consequences for the area, are many. He lists them in this order: Whether residents would get a fair return for submerged property; whether worthwhile power would be produced from the dam; the housing shortage in Bushkill; whether road construction in the area is necessary if the land is to be submerged; the housing and school situation in Bushkill, and the bad effects of road signs in the region.

On the first point, he says that under the right of eminent domain, the state can take away any land it wants, and pay as little as it wants.

"Consequently," he said, "only those persons who have marginal property on the anticipated lake are the ones who can make money from owning land."

Money From Taxpayers

"Otherwise," he continued, "this leaves only the politicians and big contractors who could hope to make money, and that money would come from taxpayers whether it was in the nature of a Federal grant or if the states vote it. Why New York, New Jersey, and Delaware should vote money to provide Philadelphia with water is beyond me."

Power? Schnitzer says that is a joke. "In dry weather," he said, "there wouldn't be enough water to turn a pinwheel."

His alternative to the big dam (and he quotes the source of his knowledge of dams as a book entitled "This Dam Business") would be a series of small dams along creeks and rivers, or a system to bring water from Lake Erie, which he says would be practical.

Schnitzer spoke on the housing shortage in Bushkill, a shortage that is being aggravated by the tearing down of good homes needlessly.

"If the dam is going to be built, why is there all the road construction?" he asks. He cites the Tamm Road. "Now a magnificent boulevard. It was not needed."

He said that the question of safety on the road is not involved. "I travel the New Jersey Turnpike, a beautiful road, every day of my business life," he said, "and seven people were killed on it in the past two weeks."

He asks: "If homes are being torn down for demolition because of the dam, why are good homes being bought and dilapidated ones left standing? The latter are a disgrace to the village. People are afraid to build because they do not know what to expect. Taxes are going up because there are fewer taxables (fewer taxable properties)."

If the dam is to be built, schools will, of course, be inundated.

"Yet Bushkill people are being called on to pay for increased school capacity, and if the dam is built, their children will never use those schools."

Slaps At Road Signs

Schnitzer finally rails against the road signs around Bushkill, which he describes as "horrible." These are the signs advertising resorts.

"They (the advertisers) are trying to attract by garishness, when beauty is more effective," he said.

"I am organizing a civic association not only to fight the dam, but to demand a garbage dump which we do not have now. I take my own garbage to Bayonne (N. J.) every week."

He does not want his house on the edge of a lake which he says will flood his house in stormy weather. "My insurance rates are high enough already," he said.

These are his main arguments against the dam. The dam is big government action, Schnitzer believes in the power of the individual.

Believing in this, he will take his stand, including writing letters against the dam from his home on Calkout Road. His opposition will take its stand in marble buildings in state and national capitals, Win, lose, or compromise, at least Henry Schnitzer had his say.

Report Red Progress On N-Submarines

WASHINGTON (AP) ( The Soviet union was credited Sunday with "enormous progress in the nuclear submarine field" which soon may enable the Russians to match the missile-firing capabilities of the powerful U.S. Polaris submarines.

The estimate came from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has extensive knowledge of military secrets through his membership on the Congressional Atomic and Senate Armed Services committees.

The United States now plans a total of 41 Polaris nuclear-powered submarines, each of which can launch 16 ballistic missiles with atomic warheads while submerged or surfaced.

Jackson, in a taped interview with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., for use over Pennsylvania radio-television stations, said the expanding Soviet nuclear underwater flotilla probably will force an expansion of the U.S. Polaris fleet.

Jackson said of Polaris program: "We're turning them out very rapidly. I think we'll have the program—41 — completed at the end of calendar 1964 or early 1965. My guess is that we'll have to increase that total."

Jackson said the Soviet Union apparently kept secret the launching of their nuclear-powered submarines until they had a flotilla. "It's safe to say that they have a growing number of nuclear submarines and this presents one of our greatest challenges in the defense field, namely the problems of anti-submarine warfare."

Scott was asked if the Soviet submarines are able to "fire from under the water as ours do?" If they do not have this ability now, Jackson replied, "There's no doubt that they will have this capability."

Miller Defends New GOP Citizens Committee In Letter

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman William E. Miller said Sunday the new National Republican Citizens Committee will cooperate closely with the party's regular organization and avoid duplication foreseen by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

In a letter to members of the regular national committee he heads, but without mentioning Goldwater's letter to him a week ago condemning the new citizens' group, Miller said: "The national committee must always encourage the broadest possible participation in party affairs."

Miller's letter was an attempt to clear up the confusion that followed a June 30 meeting on the farm of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower at Gettysburg, Pa.

Will Not Make Policy

The announced purpose of the meeting was to organize an All-Republican Conference to serve as a consultative organ for congressional leaders who make party policy based on the GOP platform.

The conference itself will not make policy, says Miller.

But newsmen covering the Gettysburg meeting said it consisted solely of speeches and nothing was said about organization of the conference or the citizens committee. News stories since then have said announcement of the citizens group was made in New York several hours after the Gettysburg meeting.

But Miller said Sunday the citizens committee had been formed before the Gettysburg meeting by leaders of former citizen and volunteer groups and Eisenhower had agreed to become its honorary chairman.

"Representatives of this new group were therefore included in our All-Republican Conference," Miller's letter said.

Last week the regular national committee and Eisenhower said the duties of the citizens group would be mainly organizational and money-raising.

Goldwater had complained that the citizens committee consists mainly of men who "contributed to the divisive tactics of the 1960 campaign when long-time and experienced Republican party leaders were shunted aside, ignored and embarrassed."

The Arizona complained also the new group would duplicate what the regular national committee is doing. He later told a reporter he agreed with Eisenhower on the idea of the All-Republican Conference. But the wording of his protest letter to Miller was broad enough to include the conference itself and it was widely interpreted as an attack on that group.

In his Sunday letter Miller said: "All of us are of course mindful of the possibility of confusion when volunteer organizations enter the field formally occupied by full-time professionals. We have dealt specifically with this problem."

"There is firm agreement that the National Republican Citizens Committee will cooperate closely with established party agencies. There is firm agreement that this new group will scrupulously avoid wasteful duplication and overlap. "With these understandings the new venture should be a source of new strength for our party."

Finds Beer Cans: Shoots Wife

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Albert Allen, 55, his wife away at the seashore for the summer, went to a neighbor's Friday to watch television.

Returning home he found beer cans in the living room and drawers pulled out, obvious evidence (he thought) of illegal entry by person or persons unknown.

Allen's dog suddenly began scratching at a bedroom closet door.

Allen took a pistol from a hiding place, yanked open the door and fired once.

His wife, Regina also 55, fell out, clutching at her abdomen and crying, "You shot me."

Later at a hospital, where her condition was reported fair, she told police she came home, decided to surprise her husband, a carpenter foreman.

"It was all my fault," she said. "I wanted to play a joke."

Seaway Due For Cargo Tonnage Peak

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway appears to be sailing toward a cargo tonnage record.

Joseph H. McCann, administrator of the corporation that operates the U.S. portion of the inland waterway, reports "an across-the board increase" in the cargoes moving between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean.

In an interview this weekend, McCann expressed confidence that tonnage this season would reach 25 million tons, and possibly 27 million, if shipping continued at the present rate.

In the 1961 season, the best so far, more than 23 million tons of cargo were carried by vessels using the Seaway.

As an example of the rising tonnage, the administration reported that iron ore shipments alone were running about 144 per cent higher than a year ago.

The Seaway's capacity is estimated at 50 million tons of cargo a year.

Bids Awaited On Fourth Dam On Wallenpaupack

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG, July 9 — A fourth dam in the estimated $2,580,000 flood control project on Wallenpaupack Creek watershed in the Greene-Dreher area of Monroe, Wayne and Pike counties is moving to the construction stage, Ivan McKeever, state conservationist of the Federal Soil Conservation Service said here yesterday.

Bids for this phase of the program will be opened July 11 by Wayne County Commissioners, contracting organization for construction of the flood control measure, McKeever said.

This dam will be west of South Sterling. The structure will cover an area of about nine acres. It will have a flood water storage capacity of 76 acre feet. (An acre foot of water is water one foot deep over one acre.) The dam breast will be built of 30,600 cubic yards of compacted fill.

Calls For 16 Dams
Plans of the federal agency of the overall Greene-Dreher flood control program call for construction of 16 dams for storing excess water in periods of heavy rainfall. After rains subside water from the dams is released at regulated flow. Two dams are completed one is being built.

The estimated cost of $2,580,000 of the project covers construction and engineering but does not include land treatment to prevent erosion and heavy water runoff in periods of heavy rains.

Cost of building the dams and engineering services, which include preparation of plans by the Federal Soil Conservation Service, is paid from federal funds. Local sponsors of the project provide rights of way for construction and agree to maintain the structures after completion.

The local project was sponsored by the county commissioners and soil conservation districts of the three counties.

Commissioners Get Bids
Although federal funds pay construction costs receiving bids and awarding contracts for building the flood control structures are under the jurisdiction of the county commissioners of the county in which the dam is to be built.

The local soil conservation districts direct treatment of land to prevent erosion.

The local flood control project was designed to prevent heavy flood damages in the area in periods of heavy rainfall in the past.

A flood on Wallenpaupack in August, 1955 claimed 12 lives and destroyed an American Legion home, four dwellings, two garages and two barns. Newfoundland authorities estimated damages at that time at about $900,000.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers placed damages along Wallenpaupack Creek in that storm at $2,000,000.

Fifty Acres Burn Sunday At Skytop

ABOUT fifty acres of scrub oak woodland were burned yesterday on West Mountain, four miles north of Skytop, as a fire fed on the parched vegetation.

The acreage, Skytop Lodge property, began to burn early yesterday morning, and was discovered by Chester Seese, a Skytop employee.

Men from Skytop, state fire wardens, and the Barrett Township fire department, joined forces to halt the blaze. According to resort officials, about 20 men battled the fire.

The fire was put out about 7:30 p.m. last night, after burning through about forty or fifty acres of undeveloped land.

Curtis Publishing May Name Its New President

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Directors of Curtis Publishing Co. meet Monday presumably to select a new president for the 70-year-old magazine empire.

A spokesman for Curtis said only that the directors would meet. He would not say if a new president would be named.

However this will be the first directors' meeting since Robert MacNeal was relieved as president, June 26.

Directors of Curtis, which has been plagued by recent heavy financial losses, relieved MacNeal, president since 1950, while he was on a trip to Europe.

A three-man committee was set up to select a new president for the company, which publishes the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies Home Journal, Holiday, Farm Journal and Jack and Jill.

Although the company is not saying, sources say a leading candidate is Matthew Joseph Culligan, 44-year-old New Yorker.

Culligan is a general corporate executive and director of Interpublic, Ind., and a director of McCann-Erickson, International and Communications Affiliates Inc. Earlier he served nine years with the National Broadcasting Co., as an executive vice president and a member of the executive council.

Curtis, which recently moved some of its editorial and business office from Philadelphia to New York, reported its first deficit in its 70-year history in 1961, a loss of $4.2 million. In 1960 it has a profit of $1.6 million after taxes.

In the first three months of 1962, the reported deficit was $4.7 million, compared with a $1.8 million loss in the same quarter, 1961.

Women Voters Endorse Proposal

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The League of Women Voters of Philadelphia Sunday endorsed state court reorganization proposals advanced last month by Chief Justice John C. Bell Jr. of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Mrs. Asher J. Fox, president of the league, said what she termed the state's highly decentralized court system violates fundamental principles of effective organization.

She praised as especially commendable Bell's proposal that magistrates must be lawyers with at least 10 years' experience.

A Good 'Whipping-Boy'

Advertising is a frequent whipping-boy of some politicians, who have put some laws on the books restricting its use, and who are always urging more. Part of the argument runs that billions of dollars each year are spent on advertising, that this is waste, and that the poor consumer must pay for it.

The advertising media long have contended that, on the contrary, advertising brings prices down by creating a mass market and publicizing comparative prices.

Now we have a report of how the inability of a business to advertise actually increases costs.

One of the fastest-growing financial businesses is mutual funds. Small investors buy shares in these funds, which then buy stocks in a wide selection of companies—thus providing professional judgment and at the same time spreading the risk.

But the Security and Exchange Commission places strict regulation on mutual funds advertising. About all they can say in an ad are their names and addresses, and that they have literature available. This hardly brings the customers in hoards.

So the funds have to hire salesmen to go out and find customers who are anxious to make such investments. If they could only advertise fully, the customers would come to the funds. Sending salesmen is expensive, while advertising is cheap.

Dudley F. Cates, executive vice president of Waddell & Reed, a distributor of mutual fund shares, told this story to the Wall Street Club in New York.

"Has it occurred to our critics (those who complain of the high service charges) that . . . the one way to bring down the cost of distribution and enable us to tell our story to the public is to allow us to develop prospects through intelligent, informative advertising?" Mr. Cates asked.

The answer is, of course not. Advertising makes too good a whipping-boy.

Campaigns Last Too Long

Pennsylvania, only partially through a long and heated gubernatorial election campaign, might look across Lake Erie to Canada and profitably observe our neighboring nation's elections procedures. Canada's political campaigns and election are completed in two months.

Contrast this with Pennsylvania whose citizens can look forward this year to a six-month campaign. The two governorship candidates started lambasting each other the day after the primaries and the campaign talk probably will continue right on up to November, becoming more intensified after Labor Day. Since the two nominees virtually ignored their primary opposition within their own parties and concentrated on attacking each other, the campaign, for all practical purposes, started in February.

Canada requires that its elections be completed within two months after dissolution of Parliament. The Christian Science Monitor, comparing Canadian and American election procedures, points out that many Canadians feel the two-month campaign is too long. This, says The monitor, probably will be the last "long" campaign.

Because of differences in governmental operations, many of Canada's election procedures would not be applicable to the United States or its individual states. But a time limit might be imposed by shortening the time between primary and general elections. New York, for example, has scheduled its primary election for September, just two months before the general election.

With modern communications and transportation systems, there is no need to drag out unnecessarily a Pennsylvania election campaign. Candidates can cover the state and meet electors in a comparatively short time and their campaign statements are disseminated quickly throughout the commonwealth by news media. Shorter campaigns would better hold the interest of voters and the parties might find them less costly.

After a long and arduous campaign, the new governor might be impressed with the need for easing the burden on future candidates and on the voters. He and members of the General Assembly should give serious thought to rescheduling Pennsylvania's election calendar so that less time would elapse between primary and general elections.

The Welfare State

George S. Montgomery, Jr., a man of broad economic knowledge, writes me:

"To challenge your thesis (that the people voted for the Welfare State) would, of course, require a volume in which the evidence pro and con would reach into factors involved in the respective elections. Against your thesis, I would point instances that Roosevelt, personally, advocated economy in government during his 1932 campaign. I recall vividly his proposal to slash 25 percent off a list of Federal expenditures."

Montgomery then gives as evidence "The Dunn Survey" which says:

"In contrast, while the number of beneficiaries of such Democratic policies increased by millions there was no increase in Democratic vote. The Democratic vote for President was as follows (in millions):

1936 - 27.5; 1940 - 27.2; 1944 - 25.6; 1948 - 26.4 incl. Truman, Thurmond, Wallace; 1952 - 27.3.

"Thus, if Democratic policies gained the great labor, farm and welfare votes Republican leaders taught their followers to believe, Democrats necessarily lost one vote for every vote gained. In addition, a smaller and smaller proportion of the population of voting age voted Democratic."

The answer, of course, is that all their candidates for the Presidency from 1932 to 1960, except Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose program and conduct in office in no manner lessened the trend toward the Welfare State. Of the current Republican candidates for President, Richard Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller and Barry Goldwater, only Goldwater really opposes the Welfare State.

President Eisenhower was elected as a military hero. It is only since he has become an ex-President that he has assumed effective leadership. When he was President, he permitted his party to fall into the hands of opportunists who played for votes without principle.

When, however, former President Eisenhower speaks of the Party of Business he needs to define his terms. There are all sorts of businesses in this country:

1. There is the "overhead" business, namely, banks, insurance companies, lawyers, engineering firms, brokers, etc. Although many of the individuals so engaged have considerable prestige, they are far removed from other and equally or more important branches of the business community. Often their interests are remotely related to the welfare of business and sometimes their earnings are greater when business is in trouble than in good times. Sometimes this group includes the "stuffed shirt" elements, those who fear to be dispossessed by the course of events.

2. There are those who operate the very large units of industry in which the ownership is, so diffuse as to be separated altogether from management. These big industries are, in effect, managed by vast bureaucracies, very much like government bureaucracies. They engage in an enormous amount of paper work. Their management is often in the hands of salaried men who only own such equities as they obtain through stock options or deferred payments. Some of them invest their savings in the shares of their companies, but the amounts are small.

In the past, many such persons enjoyed large expense accounts which they spent and therefore kept money in circulation. Anyone who knows anything about business knows that it costs money to earn money. The rigidity of the Internal Revenue Service on the subject of expense accounts has undoubtedly had an unfavorable effect on business and the managerial element.

3. The entrepreneur type of businessman is really all that is left in our mixed economy of the old-type capitalist who made this the largest productive area on Earth. He works with risk capital. He begs and borrows to organize new industries and to modernize old existing ones. He builds new plants and creates new enterprises. He is a constructive citizen.

He suffers today from the anti-risk attitude of the SEC, the New York Stock Exchange, the banks and the law — all designed to keep our economy sure and static. Often, he finds it sensible to go abroad to borrow money in countries where risk is still recognized as a proper function of the capitalist system.

4. The small businessman represents the largest unit of production and distribution. He is being squeezed between the big businesses and the enormous and costly load of bookkeeping that the government places upon him.

Which of these categories of businessman does the government consult? It is usually the first category — the very pleasant and sociable stuffed shirts who in the business world are recognized as such.

The Pennsylvania Story

Keystone State New GOP Citadel?

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Is Pennsylvania once again destined to become one of the Nation's citadels of Republicanism?

The cold, hard fact seems to be that — yes, it will unquestionably, if Congressman William W. Scranton wins the governorship of the Keystone State this fall.

However, the "citadel status" would not accrue so much because of Republican Bill Scranton's personal success — but rather because it would be a return to the long entrenched Republican fold for the Keystone State after mounting the toughest of odds and eight solid years of Democratic digging in.

Pennsylvania historically has been viewed as a rock-ribbed Republican state; one of those Gibraltar-like affairs that no one really ever bothered to give second thought (including Democrats of yesterday) — until Democrat George M. Leader upset the GOP apocryph back in 1964.

The loss of face, offices and shirts on the part of Republicans that year gave them a setback from which they never fully recovered either nationally or on the state level.

Pennsylvania's voters will determine this fall whether Pennsylvania is on the "comeback" trail — insofar as Republicans are concerned — and where the Keystone State and Bill Scranton & Co. will go from there.

Here is the significance:

There are four Republican gubernatorial contests on the agenda this fall generally regarded as having tremendous significance on the GOP national spotlight: the tiff in California with Richard Nixon as the Republican aspirant; the New York affair with Nelson Rockefeller seeking another term; the Michigan pouncing the gubernatorial sidewalk — and Pennsylvania, with Mr. Scranton as the host.

Of these four, young (44) affable Mr. Scranton of the noted upstate Scranton brood is being regarded more and more as a "key" frontrunner for national GOP acclaim — should Republicans in an upset carry Pennsylvania this fall.

Generally he is regarded as the new blood, the new generation of Republicanism in the Keystone State — a tie-in with the break-away wing of Republicans nationally, which is why his race is being viewed with the same critical eye that is being focused on the Rockefeller-Nixon-Romney scrambles in the other three states.

The seemingly distinguishing fine point is between Mr. Scranton as the victor and Republicans as the victor.

A Democratic scalping at the polls in November would assure the latter — but would carry along with it the gubernatorial hopeful, rather than the other way around.

The simple question is whether the GOP rocks can be restored to the ribs — and if so Mr. Scranton as a personality, as an individual, will be carried along with the tide whether he wants to be or not.

Curiously perhaps, by this "inadvertency" he would unquestionably find himself placed in the national spotlight — to the possible overshadowing of the other three notable GOP gubernatorial aspirants this year, but again not because of Mr. Scranton himself per se, but rather because of a GOP win in such a state as Pennsylvania.

There is yet another facet to the Scranton race that so far has been generally overlooked — but yet has not been lost on the progressive or more modern wing of the Republican Party nationally.

Republican candidates in this state historically have represented the so-called GOP "Old Guard" — the staid, ultra-conservatives of Republicanism in the Keystone State; the deriding pillar on which Democrats hammered out their two successes.

This year, notwithstanding the now standard campaign toolings of Democratic strategists, Candidate Scranton is in the fray — somewhat in spite of the GOP Old Guard (Superior Court Judge Robert E. Woodside was the Old Guard candidate) and is carrying his campaign literally on his own.

Generally he is regarded as the new blood, the new generation of Republicanism in the Keystone State — a tie-in with the break-away wing of Republicans nationally, which is why his race is being viewed with the same critical eye that is being focused on the Rockefeller-Nixon-Romney scrambles in the other three states.

JFK Plans Major Shakeup Of Military Advisers

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, July 9 — President Kennedy has started reviewing plans for a major shakeup of his chief military advisers. The new appointments, scheduled to be submitted to the Senate within the next 60 days, will affect top posts overseas and in this country, including the composition of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Significantly, the extensive changes will bring to an end the era of former President Eisenhower's influence in the military's high command.

General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, JCS chairman, General George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, and General Lauris Norstad, supreme NATO commander in Europe — all selected by former President Eisenhower for their present positions — are scheduled to be replaced by President Kennedy.

Most likely successor to General Lemnitzer, who completes his two-year tour as JCS chairman on September 30, will be either Admiral George W. Anderson, Jr., chief of Naval operations, or Admiral Harry S. Felt, commander-in-chief of U. S. forces in the Pacific.

Defense Secretary McNamara submitted the names of both Admirals to the White House to give the President a choice in selecting a new JCS Chairman.

Admiral Felt, whose anti-guerrilla warfare planning has impressed McNamara and the President, is also being considered, as successor to General Norstad, as is General Maxwell Taylor, the President's special military representative.

This important choice will be made by the President after he sounds out other leaders in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on which U. S. military officer is most acceptable to them.

Already, France's President De Gaulle has temporarily delayed these selection plans with a counterproposal of his own. Before giving his approval on a successor to Norstad, De Gaulle wants the U. S. to agree to a rotation plan in naming the Supreme NATO commander.

Under De Gaulle's plan, a U.

S. military officer would succeed Norstad, but after that selection European and U. S. generals would alternate every two years in the top NATO post.

President Kennedy and his chief military and diplomatic advisers are now studying the De Gaulle plan to determine what effect it might have on over-all U. S. strategy.

CHANGING THE GUARD

No successor has yet been chosen for Army Chief of Staff Decker, whose two-year term on the Joint Chiefs ends September 30, although President Kennedy has decided not to name him to a second term.

In private talks with the President, Secretary McNamara has discussed various replacement for Decker, including General Barksdale Hamlett, the Army's vice chief of staff, and General E. G. Wheeler, deputy commander-in-chief of the U. S. European Command.

Both Generals Hamlett and Wheeler are strong advocates of the Army's expanding its anti-guerrilla warfare training and planning along the lines now being pushed by the President.

General Wheeler, who served as the first director of the recently-created Joint Staff of the JCS, is considered by Secretary McNamara as one of the brilliant young generals in the Army. Secretary McNamara has singled him out for praise on the way he has adapted to changes proposed by civilian officials of the Defense Department.

SHIFTING RESPONSIBILITY

— Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis E. LeMay is slated to be replaced in 1963 when his two-year JCS term expires. Selected by President Kennedy in 1961, LeMay has not seen eye-to-eye with Secretary McNamara on a number of key military issues, including the building of the supersonics RB-70 bomber.

Aides to General LeMay also report that he is disturbed by the fact that the big military decisions now are being made mainly by two civilians, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

These two, plus the members of McNamara's staff, who also are mostly civilians, have had far more to do with the new American defense strategy than the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The coming shake-up of the President's chief military advisers is designed to continue and accelerate this shift in responsibility for basic military decisions.

PENTAGON INSIDE — Since the start of the Chinese Communist build-up on the mainland opposite Quemoy and Matsu Islands, President Kennedy has been consulting more and more with Chief of Naval Operations George W. Anderson, Admiral Anderson, the top Joint Chiefs expert on China, served as commander of the Formosa Patrol from 1953 to 1955. . . . Close friends of General David M. Shoup, commander of the Marine Corps, say he is sounding out aides of Secretary McNamara to see if there is any chance that he might replace General Lemnitzer as JCS chairman. . . . ## Pocono Mountain Rotarians Honor District Governor

BARRETT — Elmer Daniels was honored by the Pocono Mountains Rotary Club Wednesday for his service to Rotary as Governor of District 741.

The club presented him and his wife with a folder which contained a monetary gift to be used by them for whatever they desire.

Jay Shumaker, outgoing president, commented on the club's activities during the past year and noted that among the outstanding achievements of the club was the work done in acquiring a new doctor for the community.

William Meeks and Lawrence Hay commented on the success of the recent fishing contest held for the community youth, and noted that there would be another before the end of the summer.

Shumaker then informed the club that Mr. and Mrs. George Webb would be the first hosts for the Exchange Student to be sponsored by the Pocono Mountains and the Mt. Pocono Rotary Clubs.

The program was completed by a report from Miss Carolyn Hay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hay of Canadensis. She spoke of her recent visit to France under the Rotary Exchange Program. She showed photographs of the places she had visited and thanked the club for the privilege of visiting another Rotary family abroad. She expressed the hope that the club would continue to spread this idea of fellowship abroad to bring nations closer together.

The meeting concluded with Warren Miller accepting the gavel and urging the club to support the new officers for the coming year.

TOKYO (AP)—Violent monsoon rains triggered widespread floods and landslides in Japan's southernmost island of Kyushu this weekend, leaving at least 46 persons dead, 36 missing and 35,000 homeless.

As heavy downpours — whipped by the approach of Typhoon Joan — continued Sunday, a heavy toll was reported in human suffering, homes destroyed, property lost and damage to communications and crops.

Police in Kyushu counted 82 bridges washed away by flooding rivers, 602 landslides, 438 broken dikes, railways buried at 39 places and 80,000 acres of rice fields under water.

Troops from the self-defense forces were rushed to the worst hit regions — Nagasaki and Saga prefectures—aboard coast guard ships, as floods made overland travel impracticable. They helped dig out the buried, rescued the survivors and brought them food and clothing.

The Weather Bureau predicted more heavy rains for Monday and issued flood warnings for southern Japan.

Seismologists watching Mt. Aso, 5,055-foot active volcano in central Kyushu, expressed fear of an eruption as a result of clogging of the crater by earth driven into it by rain.

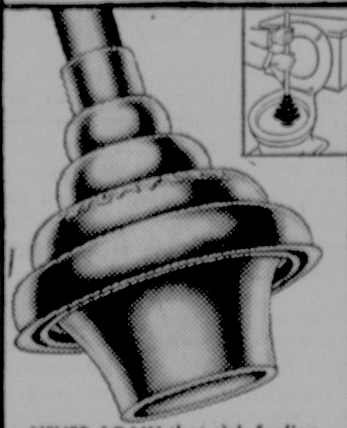

The weekend floods followed a week of hard rain in which 52 persons had perished.

The entire population of Isahaya — 65,000 persons — was ordered evacuated Sunday as waist-high water from nearby Honmei River gushed through its main street. Isahaya has not yet forgotten the flash floods of late July 1957, which took the lives of 315 persons.

The coastal city of Kashima, with a population of 40,000, 20 miles north of Isahaya, was reported marooned by flood waters.

Frog Makes Newspaper Front Page

As frogs go Jo was modest and unassuming, but in the company of a determined six-year-old female, she went pretty far.

About 800 miles, as a matter of fact, in a small pall together with three tiny tadpoles, and a pretty rock.

The leopard frog, no bigger than a half dollar with legs, first saw the light of day on the farm of Lawrence Getz, near Kunkletown.

Jo lived a quiet life, out of the public eye, until she was scooped out of her pool by Laura Melody Martin one morning early in June.

When the Martins from Illinois, left the farm, Jo accompanied them on a tour of Gettysburg and then headed west, crossing three states.

On Jo's arrival in Boulder Hill, Laura decided to have all her friends meet Jo at a coming out party, thereby saving much wear and tear on Jo.

An enclosure (child, dog and cat proof) was constructed around a much larger pool for Jo.

The cage was baited with a piece of bread and honey to attract insects for Jo's ever increasing appetite.

Laura planned a menu which included Froggies (frozen lime suckers), Green Pond Water (limeaid), Pebble Cookies (vanilla wafers) and live flies for Jo for the debut.

The human guests played leap frog and hop toad. Jo busied herself with the flies.

Recently, the temperature soared into the 90's. This proved too much for the leopard frog so Laura Melody tucked the little green body into a shallow grave among the moss rocks.

The whole story of the frog traveled through three states and was printed on the front page of the Boulder Hill, Ill., newspaper, the Aurora Beacon.

One child, demanded that the frog be exhumed, since he had missed the funeral. But Jo was spared that indignity.

Mrs. George W. Martin, Laura's mother, said "Frogs may come and frogs may go, but for Laura, there'll never be another Jo."

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Mothers early fall into the habit of reminding children of the obvious. "Say 'Thank You,' dear," they say. "Did you brush your teeth?" "Hang up your clothes before you go to bed." "Don't slam the door." "Don't forget your prayers!" become as automatic as breathing.

Well beyond the age when the children need them, they keep offering helpful suggestions, especially when they're going to leave them on their own for a few hours or a few days. The withering looks they get in return may suppress them temporarily but it's a habit that's hard to break.

I feel exactly the same way about you when I'm getting ready to foot off to the fashion shows. "Oh dear," I worry, "I hope they remember about the Book Fair or the Horse Show or whatever it is that's coming up."

And this week, it seems as if there are more things to remind you about than ever. Not only the Book Fair which opens on Wednesday but the Outdoor Art Show next weekend and the Horse Show next Saturday, all of which promise to be bigger and better than ever.

You've probably planned to go anyway and know more about them than I do, but I'll remind you anyway. Children get used to it, eventually, merely exchanging amused looks when I start clucking like a mother hen. So I guess you can, too.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

The best place to be when you're at sea is in a boat... and right now, I'm so at sea I feel I need an entire fleet of sizeable ships to land me safely ashore. But I guess one of the finest things to be doing anyway in Summer weather is to drift... lazily, contentedly, peacefully with the tide, and every man can have his own personal "yacht" in the form of an attractive, lightweight, safe but inexpensive aluminum Traveler from Wyckoff's.

If you wish to go "Floating down the river on a Sunday afternoon," you'll find a boat big enough to hold you and your dreams (as well as a few companions) in our Wyckoff-Sears parking lot. What's more, if you'd rather go at your own pace with or against the tide, the easiest way to do it is with an Elgin motor, available through our Sears store.

Pete Wyckoff has a catalogue, filled with colored pictures of our Traveler boats, and when you leaf through it you have an almost irresistible yen to rush right out into the Parking Lot, select one answering your family's needs, and head for the wide open spaces. One group of Travelers is designated Explorers... and we have them in two sizes, twelve and fourteen feet. The top quality Explorer has a semi-V hull, and is particularly suited to motor boating. In 12 foot size, this retails at 199.95. The 14 foot model is regularly 289.95, but right now Wyckoff's offers it at the special price of 249.95, a saving of forty dollars.

Another group of Travelers has "Angler" as its style name. In the 12 foot size, this particular boat weighs only ninety pounds. It retails at 155.00 while the 14 foot size, allowing the maximum in fishing freedom, is 208.00. This has a live well under the seat for storing fish or bait.

Then, of course, there is the square-bowed flat-bottom model called "Scow Bow" that comes in three sizes: a nine-footer known as Little Fisherman, at 139.95; a 12-footer selling at 145.00, and a 14 footer ticketed 179.95. The nine foot boat is our smallest, lightest weight, least expensive boat, and is excellent for youthful fishermen. In fact, we have boats to suit every age and every need.

Aside from this, I can only invite you to drive into our Parking Lot and see for yourself what splendid boats these are for the money. I can also tell you that those in our store who have boats... Billie Lambert and Dottie Sturdevant among them, to say nothing of our President himself... will tell you that you're missing half of the fun of Summer unless you are spending a good share of your leisure on the water.

Why not treat yourself to this phase of Summer living? It isn't nearly so costly, you can see, as you may have imagined. While other people are all wet from sweltering in the Summer sun, why don't you "soak up" glamour, and be all wet from the light-hearted swash you're cutting on lakes and rivers? We'd be happy to serve you, at Wyckoff-Sears.

Wonder how many of you are Sunday painters? It's amazing how many artists we have in this particular area! For the benefit of those who may be visiting here, and hoping to capture some particular Monroe County scene in oil or water color as an enduring memento of their trip, I should mention that at Wyckoff's we have a very fine, well-stocked Artists Supplies Store. Here you can buy everything you need to paint a masterpiece, as well as an attractive frame into which to fit it. We have a new shipment of exceptionally good looking, reasonably priced frames, by the way!

Annual Carnival Is Planned For Patients At Allentown

IT will be "Pirate Day" at the annual Summer Carnival for the adults of the Allentown State Hospital Tuesday, July 10, from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m.

A ship and treasure chest will mark the entrance to the carnival grounds and swords, hats and other signs of piracy will decorate the 17 booths. It is anticipated 1200-1300 patients will participate in the outdoor activities and approximately 400 will have the carnival brought indoors to their ward areas.

This carnival is made possible through the sponsorship of the various booth activities by twenty-three community groups, many of whose members also provide weekly or monthly activities throughout the year. The carnival is one of the high points of the year for both the patients and the volunteers.

This year there will be pirate hats, colorful scarves and sashes, eye patches and flowers for the patients to wear to give color and atmosphere to the carnival. A program has been planned, also, to be given during the afternoon. Members of the hospital staff will be participating in the skits, singing, dancing and rhythmic activities, which make up the program. These include doctors and psychologists, graduate nurses, student nurses, attendants, secretaries and activities staff.

A German band, under the direction of Robert Keichel, will also take part in the program outdoors. Miss Nancy Roth, accordionist, and student of Henry John's music center, will play for the indoor carnival.

Dr. Howard T. Fiedler, superintendent of the hospital, will greet the patients and volunteers. Following the carnival a box supper will be served to the patients, personnel and volunteers.

Over 200 volunteers will be participating in the carnival. Their organizations and the booths or areas they will be sponsoring are: The American Red Cross Gray Ladies of Bethlehem and Lehigh County Chapters, Bethlehem Garden Club, Blooming Glen Mennonite Church Women, B'nai Brith Women of Allentown; Bucks County Mental Health Society, Care Ladies of Allentown State Hospital, Disabled American Veterans Post 7, Doylestown Mennonite Church Women, Episcopal Women of the Bethlehem Diocese, First Presbyterian Church Wo-

Arrival Of N.Y. Titans To Pocono Mts. Will Start Today

Official Training Will Begin Friday; 75 Players On List

WITH a new head coach in famed Bulldog Turner, strengthened by player trades as well as a most promising group of rookies, and with harmony and victory the keynotes, The New York Titans, of the American Football League, head for the Pocono Mountains from all parts of the country and Canada, ready for their third and best season.

More than 75 players, including many coming up for tryouts on their own, will start streaming to East Stroudsburg State College today. Official opening day for the start of training is Friday, July 13, but by that time all players will have had their respective physicals, and many, particularly the recruits and those unsigned who feel they have a chance, will have begun the rigorous routines of leg work and book work that makes for top professional football.

Coach Turner's blueprint for victory calls for the rookies, quarterbacks and the ends to report on July 9, (today) with the balance of the veterans scheduled to report on the 11th. All players must be checked in and ready for a two-workout a day program beginning on Friday, the 13th.

Welcome Dinner

The team will be given a "Welcome-to-the-Titans" dinner at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Stroudsburg, on Monday evening, July 16, and that will be the last social break prior to the start of the exhibition schedule with the Houston Oilers, at Houston, on August 4.

The Titans will play an Inter-Squad "cut" game on either July 20 or 21 in East Stroudsburg, and another game is slated for Easton, Pa. on July 28. They must cut down to 35 players by August 14, under a new rule passed at the recent Boston meeting, and then there will be a rotation picking of players from the cutouts, with Oakland and Denver selecting first. The team limit this year will again be 35 players.

Highly Optimistic

Coach Turner, with Assistant Coach George Sauer, and holdover coaches, John Dell Isola and Bones Taylor, are highly optimistic.

"We have studied films of all of last year's games," declared the former Chicago Bear center who is all-pro for eight years and along with Sauer is a member of Football's Hall of Fame. "We know we have the material to work with and we know now the mistakes that were made. There were three or four games we should have won last year and that would have given the Titans the Eastern Division Championship.

"We don't plan any radical changes in our play except that we'll use a slot back on many occasions. But we do plan to have every man in top condition, balanced and well-organized. We will be a passing team on offense most of the time but we also have good runners when we need them."

"We've strengthened both our offense and defense and we will be strong in the kicking department. We were lucky to get men like Bill Shockley, Perry Richards, Butch Songin, Paul Miller, Ted Greene and Sid Fournet in trades. We have some great rookie potentials in boys like Wayne Fontes, of Michigan State, Alex Kroll, of Rutgers, among others, and they along with the seasoned veterans figure to balance our ball club.

"Of course, we know the rest of the League will be stronger, too. But we'll be in there fighting all the way and I am hopeful that we can come close to winning the Division Title. If not taking it, this is a potentially fine team," he said.

Top Drivers In Pocono's Field Trials

GIL Titus of Oxford, N. J., had the fastest time of the day in the Pocono Mountains Sports Car Assn., field trials yesterday.

Seventeen cars participated in the trials held near the Hill Meadow Stables, west of Stroudsburg. The course is laid out on a smooth field, taking advantage of all natural obstructions and terrain features. The course is marked by flags. Sand and mud pits are usually included in the layout.

Thus, in a Porsche, had a time of 12:3.4. In Class I, J. Palmer of Easton was first in a Morgan. His time was 13:1.1.

Other classes and winners were: Class II, Gil Titus, Oxford, N. J., Porsche in 12:3.4; Class III, Joe Harrison of Mt. Pocono in a Saab with a time of 12:9.9 and Class IV, first was Fred Gerstner of Belvidere, N. J., with a Volvo in time of 12:4.3.

Bill Collins Wins Flint Open

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Rangy Bill Collins of Miami turned in a par 72 over rain-soaked Warwick Hills Country Club Sunday and won the Flint Open with a 84 total.

Collins shaded Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., by a single stroke as Ragan ran into a string of bogies on the back nine and finished with a par 72. Collins took a one stroke lead into the final round.

Lightning Kills Golf Spectator

DETROIT (AP)—A spectator was killed by lightning Sunday as a thunderstorm interrupted play in the final round of the Flint Open Golf Tournament.

Police identified the victim as Ernest Youngblood, 35, of Madison Heights, Mich. He was watching three players putt on the sixth green when hit by the bolt of lightning.

and three runs batted in.

Richard Hickman got credit for the victory on his 94th birthday chore, George Hartshorn took the defeat.

Ralph Dunlap, with 3-for-4 and L. Wertheimer with 3-for-5 paced the Redders crew. T. Besecker and Hartshorn collected two hits each.

The heavy hitting of Nonne-macker, with 3-for-4, Bowman, with 2-for-4 and Gombos, with 2-for-3, supported Amer's superlative hurling.

C. Mullin for the Bowies banged in three runs via a big double and Bowman connected for two RBIs.

Soylorsburg committed five errors. The Lakers had run up 10 straight victories before their three setbacks in their last three games. Soyalsburg previously lost to West End 6-2, and to Stroudsburg, 2-0.

Lakers third-sacker Bond cracked a homer and had three runs batted in. His two hits in four trips paced the loser's attack.

Bushkill scored eight runs in the seventh inning to win. Redders had taken a 6-1 lead before the Bushkillmen put on the winning performance.

Don Wescott and Harold Myers had two hits each for Bushkill but Curt Hickman led the parade for the winners with 3-for-4 job

Stroudsburg's A's, putting together a winning streak of their own, romped over Tannersville, 11-2 behind fine pitching and hitting.

Price Wins

Doug Price scattered 9 hits as the A's forced the victory. Lefty Smith, playing centerfield for the A's, had three hits in five trips and batted in three runs. Smith hurled a 2-0 victory over the Lakers on July 4th.

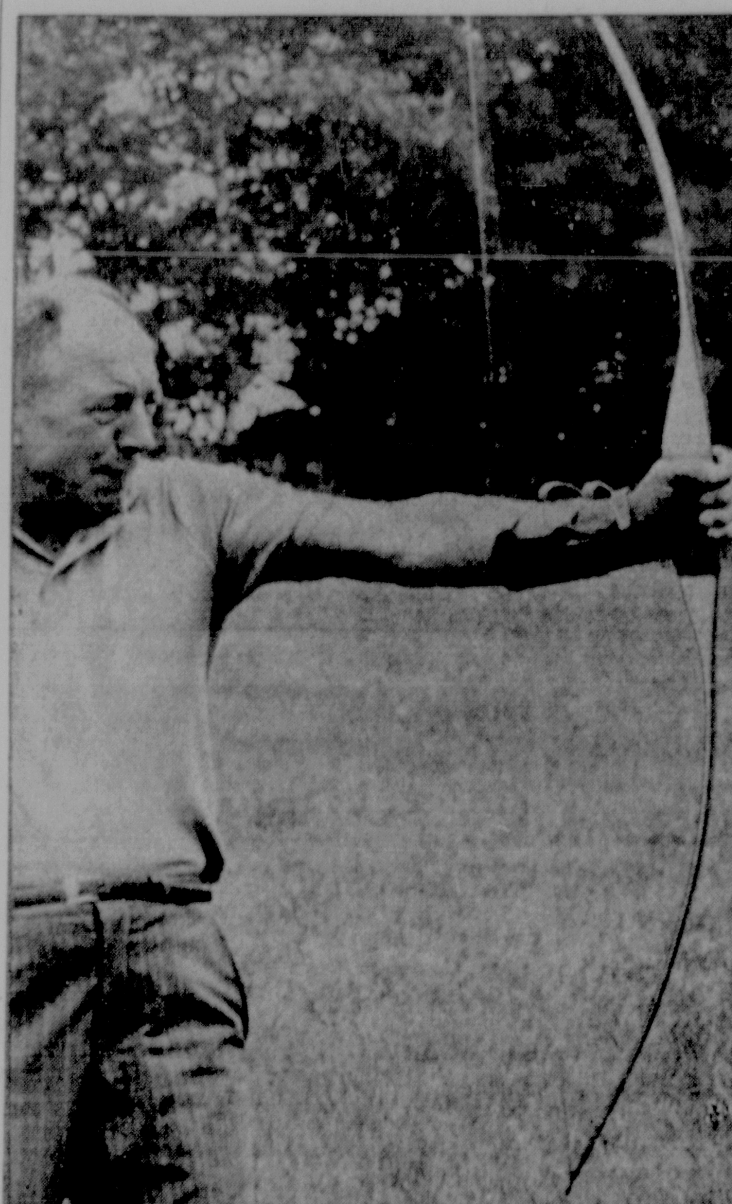

Dick Miller collected two hits, had two RBIs, stole twice, and batted in two runs for the Stroudsburg crew. John Viechnicki was the only other A's player to register two hits.

The A's victory wasn't without incident, however, as shortstop Larry Clausen reinjured his wrist in a collision with leftfielder Bill Carson. Clausen will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

It was reported that Clausen suffered a broken wrist, the same one that had been broken a while ago.

Clausen, according to manager Dick Miller, "will be sadly missed by the club. Not only has he done a terrific job at short, but has a knack of getting on base and leads the club in runs scored."

Clausen had been one of the mainstays of the A's team down through the season.

Koufax Sparks LA Into First

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Crafty

Sandy Koufax became the National League's first left-hander to strike out 200 batters in two seasons Sunday, fanning nine as he three-hit the San Francisco Giants and pitched the Los Angeles Dodgers back into first place with a 2-0 victory.

Koufax had to have ninth inning help from Don Drysdale after he yielded a pinch-hit single to Bob Nieman and walked Jim Davenport. Drysdale walked Willie Mays, flipped the bases. But Orlando Cepeda fouled out and Felipe Alou forced Mays.

Doubles by Willie Davis and Frank Howard, sandwiched between Tommy Davis' single and steal of second, scored two runs in the eighth. The rally broke through a tight Giant defense which previously had bailed Billy O'Dell repeatedly out of trouble.

Cards Blast Mets

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial matched another major league record with three home runs and Bob Gibson pitched a neat three-hitter as the St. Louis Cardinals crushed New York's error-prone Mets Sunday 15-1.

Musial's homers gave him four in consecutive official at bats, counting the one he hit in the second game of Saturday's double-header. That tied a big league mark shared by 12 other players.

The Cardinals' great 41-year-old batting star connected Sunday in the first, fourth and seventh innings and walked in the third. His try for a fifth straight homer failed when he struck out in the eighth.

Clemente's solo homer in the eighth proved to be the winning run.

Billy Smith (1-3) took the loss for the Phils.

Spahn, 41, was named to the National League All-Star squad shortly before he took the mound, replacing teammate Hank Aaron, who had to withdraw because of a leg injury.

Spahn, who had an 0-9 on the road this season, scattered 11 hits and knocked in two runs with a single in the sixth inning to tie the score. Outfielder Mack Jones provided the lead run with his 10th homer in the eighth inning. It was Jones' fourth hit of the game and enabled Spahn to boost his record to 8-10.

Give NL Edge In All-Star Game; Expect 45,000 At D.C. Stadium

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The major league baseball players take a mid-season break after Sunday's action to clear the way for the 32nd All-Star game at the new D.C. Stadium Tuesday, when bitter pennant rivals close ranks in the interests of league prestige and the pension fund.

Although the American League's starting line-up packs more home run power than the National League's all-right-handed batting order, the National is a slight favorite.

The game already is assured of a sellout crowd of 45,015. The first pitch is scheduled for noon, EST. Many more will follow the game on network (NBC) television and radio.

The National finally has a chance to catch up with its old rivals after eating their dust since the series began in 1933. Despite the fact that the National has lost only one of the last six (one was a tie) they need to win Tuesday's game and the second game in Chicago, July 30, to get even. The American leads 16-14 with one tie.

Must Play

By decree of the players, coaches and managers who select the starting line-ups, the Nationals must play the first three innings at least with eight right-handed batters in the line-up. Naturally, that means the American will start a right-handed pitcher, probably Jim Bunning of Detroit, or Camilo Pascual of Minnesota. Manager Ralph Houk named eight pitchers, but only one is a lefty, Hank Aguirre of Detroit.

Fred Hutchinson, Cincinnati manager who won the job of bossing the Nationals because, like

Houk, he won a pennant in 1961, has two lefties on his staff—Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Milwaukee's Warren Spahn. Spahn was named as a replacement for Braves' outfield star Hank Aaron, who was picked as a reserve on the squad but was forced to pull out because of leg injuries.

However, if he doesn't open with Koufax, the left-handed power in the American League line-up may spend any right-handed starter.

If Hutch doesn't open with Koufax, he probably will turn to Don Drysdale, the 15-game winning Dodger who is enjoying a great season. Drysdale started both games in 1959, the first time they had two All-Star games in the same year. Bob Purkey, 14-game winner from his own Cincinnati staff, is another possibility.

Sixty per cent of the receipts and radio-TV money, which is part of an over-all World Series-All-Star package, goes into the player pension fund.

The resurgence of Roger Maris and the injured Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees has given the American side a lift. Leon Wagner, one of two Los Angeles Angel All-Stars, also swings a home run bat as does Baltimore's Jim Gentile, the first baseman.

Rich Rollins, Minnesota's sensational rookie third baseman, beat out such established stars as Brooks Robinson and Clete Boyer and led the American League voting with 184 of a possible 280.

Billy Moran of the Angels won second base in another surprise. The choice of Earl Battey of Minnesota as catcher was not unexpected but there were some eyebrows raised when Luis Aparicio of Chicago made the grade despite his low sub .250 average.

Tom Davis of Los Angeles, Willie Mays of San Francisco and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh form the outfield. The Pirates also contribute the heart of the infield with second baseman Bill Mazeroski and shortstop Dick Groat. Ken Boyer of St. Louis is the third baseman.

Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco first baseman, led the voting with 229 of 290 cast in the National. The catcher is Del Crandall of Milwaukee.

The International Lawn Tennis Federation meets in Paris Wednesday to discuss a recommendation from the federation's management committee to throw tournaments open to the professionals next year for an experimental two year period.

A similar suggestion two years ago was turned down on a majority vote, but the British Lawn Tennis Association and the All-England Club, who between them run Wimbledon, have made no secret of the fact that they want the pros in.

The prospect of seeing players like Pancho Gonzales, Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall matched against the cream of the amateur ranks would pull the British fans still among the most rabid in the world—into the courts ten deep. And it would answer the most pressing question in the tennis world today: Is the modern standard as high as it was?

One star who thinks it is Neale Fraser, the 28-year-old Australian who won here in 1960. Fraser not only reckons the present players are better than they ever were in his young days, but he says Rod Laver, this year's men's winner, is an amateur who would find no difficulty in beating the pros.

Laver, a sandy-haired, 23-year-old left-hander, pulled off the quickest final victory in modern time by blasting fellow Australian Martin Mulligan of the court in 52 minutes and retained his title last week.

The 1962 Wimbledon will go down in the record books because: Only two men seeds reached the semifinals, a non-seed reached the finals of both men's and women's singles for the first time in history, and a Czech girl reached the women's final for the first time ever.

She was Mrs. Vera Sukova, who took Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Tex., to a 6-4, 6-4 fight.

Judges for the event, in which three awards will be made in each division, will be Dr. Elwood Uhler, Sheriff William Hontz, Northampton County, and Richard Sells.

Other events scheduled for the lake during the remainder of the summer are a Baby parade, Sunday, July 29; Water Ballet, Saturday and Sunday, August 11 and 12, and the annual clam bake scheduled for September 1.

The event is open to the public. Last year there were more than 5,000 people at the lake to witness the show.

Wimbledon Now Seeking Tennis Pros

By ROBERT JONES
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—With the cash customers still rolling in by the thousands, Wimbledon still looks like remaining the healthy member of the ailing tennis tournament family for years to come—whether the professionals join in or not.

The International Lawn Tennis Federation meets in Paris Wednesday to discuss a recommendation from the federation's management committee to throw tournaments open to the professionals next year for an experimental two year period.

on your mark...
get set...
... wait

That's the cadence for today's GI. Always patrolling at the rim of a restless peace, he must be in a constant state of readiness, then wait.

But a vigil's a tough tempo for active youth. Over half the GI's are under 25—many of them are away from home for the first time.

GI's need the USO in this cold war of tedium and tension. The homey touch... spiritual lift... the relaxation the USO brings them.

But there are 2,750,000 Americans in uniform today, and not enough USO's to go around. Many more are needed, both here and overseas. Your money can make it possible. Help the USO, so no GI will ever wonder...

"Does Anybody Know I'm Here?"
